July 27, 2011 update from wiki as a result of a request for a transcript: Capitol College is a private, non-profit, and non-sectarian college located just south of Laurel, Maryland, in unincorporated Prince George's County. It was founded in 1927 as the Capitol Radio Engineering Institute, changed its name to the Capitol Institute of Technology in 1964, and assumed its current name in 1987. Capitol specializes in undergraduate and graduate programs in engineering, computer science, information technology, and business. In 1966, the District of Columbia licensed the Institute to award Bachelor of Science degrees in engineering technology. Anticipating the need for more space, the Institute decided to move to a leased facility in Kensington, Maryland in 1969, which opened in January 1970. Six years later, in 1976, the Middle States Commission on Higher Education (MSCHE) awarded full accreditation to the Institute. remained in Greenville until the fall of 1915. In 1890 the Presbyterian College for Women was founded in Columbia, SC; it was housed in the Hampton-Preston House, 1615 Blanding Street. It was one of the first colleges in the South to offer a rigorous education to women. In 1910, the name of the school was changed to College for Women. When the school closed in 1915, the Presbyterian Church offered the property to the trustees of Chicora College. At that time, Chicora moved to Columbia, SC onto the property formerly occupied by the College for Women. The name became Chicora College for Women. In 1930, the Presbyterian Synod of South Carolina recommended that Chicora College be merged with Queens College, Charlotte, NC. From 1930 to 1939, Queens College was known as Queens-Chicora College.

(This information is from <http://campus.queens.edu/library/archives/chicoracats.htm>)

During the period 1927-30, overflow housing for Chicora College was in the Robert Mills House, 1616 Blanding Street, Columbia.

June 25, 2009, The State included an article about the Historic Columbia Foundation exhibit at the Hampton-Preston Mansion. A PDF is available from CHE.

11/19/92 article in The State In a federal indictment handed down Wednesday in Columbia, the grand jury charged "The director of Mansfield Business College in Columbia with filing false statements with a federal agency. Kevin J. Daughtry, 35, of Asheville, N.C., deliberately caused college employees to misstate when students receiving government aid discontinued their studies, the grand jury said. Since federal law requires schools to refund to the government unused portions of federal grants, the college made money by misstating dropout dates by a month to a year, the grand jury said. If convicted on all 12 counts of the indictment against him, Daughtry could face up to 60 years in prison and fines totaling $2 million."

Note: Kevin Daughtry was tried, found guilty, and served a sentence. However, according to U.S. Department of Education Inspector General's office, Daughtry successfully appealed the decision because it was of negligible importance at that point, U.S. Ed did not fight the appeal.

Palmer College and Draughon's Columbia

Merged with Columbia Technical Education Center; Contact: Attn: Records; Midlands Technical College, P. O. Box 2408; Columbia 29202; Registrar’s Office (803) 738-7798

Information from Midlands Tech’s web site: Palmer College was issued a charter as a private non-profit educational institution in 1954. The institution began operating in Charleston in 1957. In 1960, the Association of Independent Schools and Colleges accredited the Columbia Campus as a Junior College of Business. By 1966, Palmer College had expanded its program offerings to become a comprehensive two-year college. In 1971 the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools accredited Palmer College as a general-purpose junior college. In July 1972 the State Board for Technical and Comprehensive Education and the Board of trustees of Palmer College completed a Merger Agreement, which merged Palmer College with the State Tec system. In August 1972 the Palmer College Board of Trustees and the State Board acknowledged approval of the merger by the State Budget and Control Board. Under the Merger Agreement, a feasibility study was conducted during the 1972-73 academic year. The primary recommendation of the Feasibility Study was to establish comprehensive two-year colleges in Columbia and Charleston. On March 21, 1973, after unanimous approval by the Richland County Legislative Delegation, the Lexington County Legislative Delegation, and the Richland-Lexington Counties Commission for Technical Education, the State Board unanimously approved the merger of the three institutions into a single institution, multi-campus concept with one campus to be located at the site of Columbia Tec (now the Airport Campus of Midlands Tech) and the other campus to be at the site of Midlands Tec (now the Beltline Campus). The South Carolina Commission on Higher Education approved the merger in June 1973. In August 1973 the State Budget and Control Board and the Palmer College Board of Trustees finalized the merger.
